The Business Men to Be Consulted-The Painters' Triumphal Procession-Funny Experience of Two Mikes-Other Local.

The Yankton Railroad. A delegation of business men arrived In this city last evening from Yankton, Dakota and Wayne, Neb., in the interests of the Omaha & Yankton railroad. At the Paxton hotel they were in consultation last night with Secretary Nottinger of the board of trade. The representatives are Major J. R. Dawson, William W. Powers, A. B. Slater and John E. Bennett. The former gentlemen are the forerunners of a party of forty, which will arrive in this city on Monday evening. The meeting last even-ing was informal and the project was discussed in a general way. It was agreed that the Yankton business men should be received by the directors of the board of trade on Monday night, On Tuesday evening a public meeting will be held at which it is expected a full attendance will be had of the business men of the city. The Yankton men will present the importance to Omaha of aking their city tributary to this center of trade. A line has already been surveyed to West Point, Neb., from this city, and the Yankton gentlemen last night stated that from West Point a prelimi-nary line had been run which showed

The committee also met Mr. B. F

also had an extended interview with Dr

George L. Miller. Mr. Smith expressed himself as greatly interested in the pro-lect of a railroad to Yankton and was deeply engrossed in conversation with the Yankton and Wayne delegation for a half hour. He expressed himself as conwinced that the proposed line would pay and that it ought to be built at once. When questioned by a reporter as to pected to extend to the railroad the Wankton gentleman stated that they had realculated $150,000 of the required $500,000 could be raised in Yankton, Wayne and St. Helena. This would leave $350,000 for Omaha to contribute. The delegations considered that the construction of such a line would both struction of such a line would both benefit their towns and would, at the same time, add 20,000 people to Omaha in two years. They state that the secretary of the board of trade assured them that as soon as this railroad was assured a large elevator and an extensive flouring mill would be exceeded. The condouring mill would be erected. The con-nection which such a railroad would give Omaha with the corn raising belt of Southern Dakota and the wheat growing greatly enlarge our market of products. It is claimed that, in reality, this road would be the missing spoke in the wheel of which Omaha is the hub. Yankton is connected directly with Mitchell and Huron by the Northwestern road, and thus Omaha would become directly con-meeted with the great Dakota region which these roads reach into, including the fertile James river valley. MET ON THE ROAD. Max Schroter One of the Witnesses of the Texan Robbery. It is a well known fact that in all of The railroad accidents which have of late taken place in the country, some person last evening. The president, John Wilson Omaha was on board the train son, occupied the chair. He opened the The latest exemplification of this truism has been found in the presence of Mr. Blax Schroter, the well known pharmacust of this city on the train which was robbed in Texas a few nights ago. Some of the particulars have already appeared in the papers, but they differ in many respects from the real circumstances of e case. Mr. Schroter arrived in town Friday night and was met by a BEE re-porter this morning. He said he was on the train, on the international line, which had just reached McNeill, a station about ten miles from Austin. They reached the place at 9.30 o'clock. The night was as dark as pitch. The train was signalled and came to a stop. It was greeted with a single A few moments later a couple of explosions took place, and later a fusi-lade, lasting some time, threw the passengers into uncontrollable fear. Mr. Schroter was in the sleeper. The win-now near him was open. He turned to cok out and pull down the curtain when a voice outside said, "Take back your head, sir." Mr. Schroter took it back. Passengers immediately threw their valuables under the seats, and nearly all of them lay upon the floor in promiscuous terror and confusion. One of the passengers, Henry Landa, a corn contractor to the governor, who was in the smoking spartment of the sleeper, and at one of the windows, misunderstanding the order of the robbers on the outside, moved look out, when a bullet k out and pull down the curtain when to look out, when a bullet struck him in the left hand shattering t dreadfully and passing through the window on the other side of the car. At last accounts Lande was in a hopeless ndition, leckjaw having ensued passengers momentarily expected the en one of the latter sald that they did not wish to molest the passengersquent discoveries revealed the fact that the express car had been broken into and the robbers helped themselves to whatever money they could find. The amount is variously estimated at from $2,000 to $25,000. Before stopping the train the robbers took the precaution to cut the wires and destroy the telegraphic instruments, thus cutting off all means of communication with the rest of the world. The train was de ed for fifteen minutes, and no train was expected at the place for four hours, so that the robbers, had they been so dis-bosed, might have easily robbed all the passengers without fear of arrest. cession Yesterday. Yesterday the painters to the number of 200 paraded the streets on account of their snecess. The first stop was made at the BEE office, where the band gave several selections. Mr. Craven, who has acted as president of the meetings throughout the strike, then stepped forward and called upon Mr. E. Rosewater, some complimentary words, saying, among other things, that the BEE, its editor and employes had stood by the painters and paper hangers in a strong yet conserva-live manner. They felt it a duty, therefore, to return a slight compliment by calling at the Bkz office that afternoon.

Mr. Craven's remarks were interrupted by frequent rounds of applause, and when he concluded there was loud calls for Mr. Rosewater, who replied in a few words, saying that he had always made it a point to advocate united labor in every legitimate movement, and would continue to do so. Mr. Rosewater's remarks were received with cheers. The procession then counter-marched and turned down Tenth street to Metz's hall. There several speeche were made by members of the organiza-Mr. S. Mr Hunt said, in continuance, that the journeymen painters could hold out for year as far as financial matters was

Mr. Craven then produced the gave that had been used during the strike meetings, and on suggestion, it was made a sacred memento of the assembly. On resolution, Messrs. Bons & Mumm, proprietors of Metz' hall, were thanked or their kindness during the several sessions of the assembly.

A meeting of the painters will occur this evening. Altogether this has been one of the best regulated and most sensibly conducted differences between employers and employes that ever occurred in this city, and the painters and paper hangers to day stand very high in the estimation of the citizens of Omaha.

intelligent, conservative freeholders who have the best interests of our school system at heart, and who will demonstrate thal fact by their work after the election. The office is not a sinicure nor is it a place of political preferment, and, instead of giving it to the man who seeks it, elevate to it the citizen who stands highest in the estimation of his fellow-men. DISCUSSING MANUAL TRAINING. The Union Pacific Library Association Declares It Good. A very interesting meeting of the Union Pacific Railway Club and Library association was held at the headquarters last evening. The president, John Wilmeeting with a brief but practical a dress upon the purposes of the association. Mr. Edgar H. Mumford read a very entertaining paper upon the subject, "A Railway in Peru, wrote about from personal experience in a trip upon one of the mountain roads in that country.

The question, "Shall manual training be introduced in our graded schools?" was then discussed intelligently at great length. Mr. W. I. Baker presented the length. Mr. W. I. Baker presented affirmative phase of the topic. He contended that the conditions of the human race had always been unfavorable to the workers. Yet, he contended, mankind has always been benefitted far more by the workingman than by all the efforts of statesmen or lawyers. He claimed that the answer to the question of why more children did emain in school until graduation, was that their parents did not see anything practical in it. The false system of edu ation which we now have, he held, built up a class of sharpers who live by their wits and on the workers. He strongly advocated the adoption of manual training as an adjunct to the school, because t would tend to break down the false notions of social superiority, which made the $15 clerk a different person than the

Quite a discussion followed. The ma ority of the association favored the introduction of manual training.

Philanthropic Hebrew Ladies. A special meeting of the Hebrew Ladies'Sewing society, called for the pur pose of winding up the affairs of that institution during the second year of its organization, was held on Friday at the synagogue. Mrs. Adolph Meyer, secretary, and Mrs. B. Newman, treasurer brought in their reports. After an ex-penditure of $178 during last winter there is still $74 in the hands of the treasurer. A vote of thanks was extended to the officers named as well as to Mrs. M Hellman, president, and Mrs. Fred Adler, vice president, for the faithful discharge of their duties. The association adjourned until the first Sunday after the Hebrew holidays in the fall. There are ninety members of the society.

Grand Celebration. At a recent meeting of Knights of Labor it was decided that the fifteen assemblies of this city should unite in a grand Fourth of July celebration at the fair grounds. A programme consisting of athletic games, a grand barbacue, horse racing and a balloon ascension will be arranged. It is expected that the knights of the surround-ing cities and towns will unite with their brethren of this city in the celebration of independence day and that the occasion will be one of the greatest ever had in the west. John Jenkins, Richard O'Keefe and Julius Meyers comprise the finance committee.

Crystal Wedding. Mr, and Mrs. Thomas A. Pieronet will celebrate their crystal wedding, tifteen years of marriage, at their residence, rifth and Division streets, on Thursday evening next. The genial "Tom" will take off the star for that occasion and receive the congratulations of his friends, who are as steadfast as they are numerous. A. O. H. Reception. To-morrow night the A. O. H. will give a reception in its hall on the corner of Thirteenth and Juckson streets. All the members and their lady friends are expected to be present. A good time is

BOARD OF EDUCATION. A Special Meeting to be Held Monday

Evening. Next Monday evening the board of education will hold a special meeting to consider the plans of F. M. Ellis for a school building on the high school grounds. Ellis' bid was for a building to cost $35,000. His working plans were for a sixteen-room structure with brick walls only a foot thick. This is considered unsafe by members of the board and therefore the matter will be brought before the body. The investi-gation of the accounts of Secretary Connager will also come up. The meeting is an important one and a lively time is anticipated. It was stated yesterday that Judges Lake and Savage had delivered an informal opinion that the present board had no au-thority to elect teachers. This being the case, it is thought that the public school system of the city will be greatly disarranged, as the teachers selected by the board will of course seek other fields of labor. Under the present condition of affairs the board is in doubt whether it is a legal body, and it is probable that at Monday night's meeting an effort will be made to settle the complicated question of authority.

Gentlemen With Epaulettes Fighting

The engineer of the steam heating apparatus of the Strang building took it in his head yesterday afternoon to build a fire to burn a mass of waste paper which had been thrown into the furnace. He had a fire in about a minute. The flames roared out of the furnace and up the chimney and out of the top of the orifice. People who stood in the street saw it and yelled fire. The department responded and the heads of the departments of the Department of the Platte distin-tinguished themselves: They rushed for the buckets and then for the roof. Generals Breck, Wilson and Dandy led the van, and made a gallant and irresistible charge upon the blazing embers which poured out of the chimney. Even Chief Galligan, who had the whole fire department in readiness in the street below, lost his usual activity in his admiration of the impetuous attack of the war veterans on his oft-fought enemy. The generals, too, put out the fire.

They Went to a Party. When Mike O'Brien, foreman for Meaney on street work, and Mike Mc-Carthy, of the Union Pacific shops, walked into a brilliantly lighted business place at Sixteenth and Cumings streets last evening at 10 o'clock they revealed a condition of dilapidation as to clothing and skin which would have done credit to the man who went through a thresh ing machine.

Mike McCarthy explained: He said: 'we started out to go to Johnny White's house. Johnny is a foreman in the shops and he was married a few weeks ago. He has just got himself settled in a bit of a place out in the far northeast part of the town and to-night me and this bird of evil omen started out there to go to a house-warming which Johnny is giving. I didn't know the way but Mike did. He said so, anyhow. Just look at the likes of him now and see whether he didn't. "Well, as I was saying, me and Mike started out for Johnny's and lost our way. We walked about a mile and came up to Cutoff lake. Mike stopped, and says he, 'Wait till I get a flash.' Pretty soon a flash came and Mike, away off, saw a house, 'There it is,' says he, and he started ahead fast. I didn't follow so fast, and he was lost in the dark. In a minute I heard some one hollerin' for help, and there right in front of me was Mike up to his waist in water and mud. He'd walked right into the lake. I helped him out—look at him, will you! There's O'Brien with his high-water pants, sure.
"Then it began to rain. We kept on in the rain a ways until we came up against a house. It was only a half-fin-ished house, and we didn't think any body was in it. There was, though, you see that!" and he showed his left knee, over which the cloth of his pants was apparently cut away. Across his knee pan was a furrow about an eight! of an inch deep. "That's where the bullet went. A little deeper and e wouldn't be walking around with more than one knee cap."

"What bullet?" was asked,

"Why, that's what I was going to tell you. You see, when it rained we thought we'd step into this half-finished house to keep dry. So we did. We hadn't been there more than a minute, and neither of us had a match, when we heard the -dest racket, and knew there was a dog inside besides ourselves. We stepped outside. We didn't care to cultivate the dog's acquaintance. Then the fellow inside-he was there-began shooting. We started on the run.

But he kept shooting behind us, and some 'coons' who live near there joined in. We had more than fifty darkies after us in a minute. They commenced throwing brick bats at us, the dog was close behind, and then there was the galoot a'shootin'. Mike here struck the first wire fence and I caught another one a few yards farther on. Then Mike hit a clothes line and it caught him right under the chin and knocked him went on a little farther. Mike would say: 'For God's sake, Mike, keep running; that dog's right behind.' "

"When we finally had outrun the heathens who were chasing us, we started in to take our bearings. God bless you, neither one of us knew whether we were in Omaha or Council Bluffs. Finally I got up on a barn and looked, Omaha and then I saw Councit Bluffs, and I knowed where we were. We struck out until we reached a road and we came in on it. We've playing in big luck to be alive."

When the two were last seen they were organizing a relief party and were going back to clean out the "nagurs." Further developments are looked for soon.

The Brigham-Young Concert. The Brigham-Young concert of songe next Thursday evening promises to be one of the most successful musical events of the season. Among others, Mr. Brighs.n will sing one song, the rendition of which is always associated with his voice—viz— "Dreams," by Streleski. Mr. Young will be heard in the popular song by Pinsuti, called, "Queen of the Earth." Mr. Young is the musical director of the new Apollo club.

Two Railway Accidents. Wm. Ormsby, an Union Pacific brakeman, was thrown from the top of a freight car yesterday forenoon at the stock yards. He sustained a broken shoulder. He is being given medical attendance at Officer Dempsey's house.

Patrick O'Hern, another brakeman, had two fingers pinched while coupling cars yesterday morning before daylight in the yards at the Tenth street crossing. He will lose one.

AN OMAHA'S INQUIRY.

mportant Questions Which an Indian Propounds.
DECATUR, Neb., May 16.-To the Edi of the BEE: Recently, as stated by the BEE, a trio of chiefs of the Omaha tribe of Indians visited his excellency Governor Thayer, for the purpose of supplicating for a stay of oppressive taxation. A letter signed by the governor has been brought home by the so-called chiefs, which letter, as understood, guarantees hem and their people to be exempt from taxation, personal and real, for the period of twenty-five years. Could this guarantee be sustained, it shall be the wish of a majority of the Omaha tribe. But what has been done toward ad vancing the Indian race from the stati on of wards of the government to that of citizens of the United States. This and more questions ought to interest all good people. The United States has for a people. The United States has for a number of years made ample provision for the education of the Indian— such institutions as the Hampton (Va.), normal school, which stands foremost of all; the Cartisle school, of Pennsylva-nia; the Haskell institute of Kansas, and many others adapted to training of the Indian youth on the road to civilization. This work has been done in view of their ultimate citizenship, which has been effected some time past. Abraham Lincoln gave liberty to the African on American soil, and did not Grover Cleveland give liberty to the successors of the original inhabitants of America? On February 8, 1887, the president of the United States signed a bill which declares all Indians citizens (with few exceptions), and the Omahas are included with those who are made citizens. This bill, as understood, holds that we pay no taxes on our lands for twenty-five years from the time of allotment in severalty; and it is also understood that we have protection of the laws of state of Nebraska. It declares farther, that the legislature of the state wherein a tribe of Indians re-side can make no law abridging their rights as citizens. We do not ask to be taxed, even on our personal property, but we must have the protection of the law. Taxation and protection of the law being somewhat reciprocal, it seems that there must be some kind of a tax. State authorities please investigate. HIRAM CHASE,

Member of Omaha Tribe.

Gone Again. Some time ago it was announced in the BEE that a saloon-keeper named Frank Jedlika, doing business in the cellar at the corner of Farnam and Thirteenth streets, had compelled his fifteen year old daughter to act as barmaid, and that the girl had run away. Later she was found and brought home, and now serted his family and refused to provide for their necessities. A Little Accident. THE RUSHVILLE MOB.

itor of the BEE: On Sunday, June 12,

1886, C. C. Akin, a prominent attorney of

The "Other Side" of an Event Nearly a Year Old. RUSHVILLE, Neb., May 14.-To the Ed-

this place, was taken out a short distance from town by a lawless gang of ruffians, and after a certain form of preliminary abuse and indignities, was reduced to a nude state and covered cap-a-pie with molasses, tar and feathers, and in which condition he was ridden for some distance on a scantling, and afterwards marched to music through the principal streets of the place. While still in the custody of the mob he was compelled to sell his town property including his office, which was trans-ferred to a member of said mob, thence he was driven to his farm a short dis tance from town and there in the pres-ence of the "captain" and his "lieuten-ants" and a sufficient portion of the "rank and file," his wife's signature to the deed was, under threats, terrorism and intimidation, secured. Since the above event the said Akin has with wife and a portion of his family resided in the neighboring town of Hay Springs. An article soon appeared in the BEE purporting to give a true account of the disgraceful transaction and infamous outrage, and was just such an article as a member of just such a mob would naturaily write. The two newspapers here being under the influence of the mob element became its mouth-pieces (Akin having recently brought suit against one of them for $10,000 damages) and altogether it is no wonder we hear from all parts of the country that Rusnville has the reputation of being a town of "roughs."

Any town is liable to have its rough element, and the mobbing of one of its best and most law-abiding citizens shows that Rushville is not an exception. This rough, boystrous, disturbing and lawless element is like dust—it will fly for a time and pollute and thicken the social atmosphere—but it will be eventu-ally settled by the moral forces which, in truth, largely predominate here, though unorganized. And it is on behalf of this moral portion of this community, who would under no circumstances er gage in the practice of tar-and-feather ruffianism, but who would and do in unmeasured and unqualified terms con-demn it; and to disabuse the public mind of the impression, should such exist, as might have been created by the mobiles and their allies, that the mobbing of Akin was, or has been, acquiesced in, or upheld or pardoned by any really disinterested or respectable citizen or citizens, the writer has decided to remain silent no longer in the matter of presenting to the public at least a synopsis of the inevitable "other side."

It is not our purpose, nor will any at-tempt be made to hold up any man as an angel, or as being morally immaculate and exempt from peccadillo. Akin's friends, and they are many, desire that he shall have a fair deal—no more, no less. If he violates law, let him take the consequences. But he was not accused of violating any law, not even by the mobites and their friends. He was not an immoral man-not a bad citizen to any but those who were themselves bad in their intentions and practices. On the contrary, he was considered, but a short time previous to the outrage, not only a good citizen but the most conspicuously prominent and leading man and freely worthy of special preferment and honor. This was his standing on February 1 1885, when a petition was signed by al the business men of Rushville except four, to Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar, secretary of the interior, asking his appointment as register of the new Northwest United States land district, as described by bills then pending in congress. In said petition his character was set forth as a man thoroughly qualified in every essential particular for the above mentined office, which it was then thought Rushville might luckily secure. But, in the progress of the rapid settlement of this region of country, a great many attempts have been made by sundry speculators, adventurers and "settlers" to fraudulently possess themselves of land, and their ill-disguised frauds were too thinly covered to escape the sharp-eyed Akin, and there being an "over dose" of this kind of land grabbers in and around Rushville who were unable to control him by any means at their command or to enlist him in their crooked and rascally schemes, they took a tangent and became incensed to a high pitch of madness at the way he persisted in foiling them, and uniting and mobbing him and driving him, by threats of a worse fate, to other parts of desperate resort. A life-like, group pic-ture of the mobbites would be an interest-ing specimen, and would furnish an ing specimen, and would furnish an amusing study for a physiogomist. Its proper place would be in the "rogue's gallery." They are "beauties." (?)

Having committed the crime of mobbing him, all they have said or done since by themselves or through their attorneys evinces only madness, trickers and in keeping with the spirit and intent which prompted the mobbing.

A certain report, said to have been started by one of the mob's attorneys, is going the rounds of a certain class of newspapers that Akin has been disbarred. The order of March 19, 1881, from the general land office disbarred all land agents and attorneys who had been previously practicing as such until they should comply with its requirements. and Akin was no more affected by said order than any other attorney and agents. The truth half told is often worse than a lie. The palpable object of such report is to injure him just on the eve of his heavy damas dark colors; these are worth 50 cents a yard; our age suits against the mobbites, their abettors and sympathizing slanderers, They mobbed, they published slanderous statements; $500, and afterward $1,000 was offered by one of the mob (so said on good authority) to a certain man if he would kill Aken; they were mad when a change of venue was granted, taking th case to Dawes county; are selling and otherwise getting their property out of their hands; have left and going, or get-ting ready to go to distant and unknown parts; and having done what they have so anothing they may yet do to sustain their wicked cause will be only an addi tional chapter of the same vile and hellish story they are giving to the MR. AKIN'S STORY.

MAY SPRINGS, Neb., May 13.—To the Editor of the BEE: W. H. Westorns, one of the attorneys for the Rushville mob bites in the great "tar and feathers" suit, to be tried at Chadron the next term of 30, did, during last week, circu-late a report all along this late a report all along this line of rairoad from Valentine to this Bowen, to the effect that I had been disbarred from practicing as a land attor-ney before the interior department, and has succeeded in getting it published in four different papers that I have seen, and no telling how many more will copy the said item as I am so well and favorably (?) known in this and all the adjoining states and territories. Wherefore I write to state that said report is false, and is circulated by the attorney for the mobbites, for the sole and only purpose of injuring me and helping his friends and clients, just on the eve of the trial of said suit. This has been their mode of warfare from the first. They do this to try and prejudice the court and lury against me, and thus de-feat the ends of justice. I therefore ap-peal to the BEE, for I am battling against great odds—twenty-one men, some of them rich, on one side, and me alone on the other, which makes a very uneven conflict. It does seem that they might stand against me without resorting to such low mean thicks, but then it is their nature, and as I have truth and right on my side I feel sure I will come out all right. So far I have made them squirm. I have four suits against them now aggregating about $50,000 and poor old man Wallace, they mobbed him before me, has one against them for $10,000. No wonder they are putting this property out of their hands. By
